New Undergraduate Programs
Two programs released for Fall 2022 semester! Addiction Studies and Law, Justice, and Society.

Addiction Studies prepares students for careers in the fields of substance use, behavioral disorders, and mental health counseling. Addiction Studies is available as a major or a minor and offers an additional track that concentrates on addiction counseling and prepares students in becoming a Licensed Alcohol and Drug Counselor Level 1 (LADC-1) in Massachusetts.

Available as a major or a minor and refreshed for 2022, Law, Justice, and Society provides a strong foundation for students considering law school, advanced degrees in the social sciences, or careers in advocacy, business, criminal justice, government, international relations and public service, among others. The Law, Justice and Society program emphasizes critical thinking and research, communications skills, informed dialogue and respect for differing perspectives.
